General Notes to Applicants

As a general rule, only ONE service agreement will be offered to each applicant in the written papers (i.e. Paper 1 or Paper 2 or Paper 3). Applicants can indicate their marking preference and are encouraged to select more than one written paper in order to increase the chances of their application being successful. Markers will be chosen for a particular paper taking into consideration the overall needs and requirements of the subject as a whole.

Markers applying for the written papers may also apply for Paper 4 to serve as an oral examiner. There is currently no overlap between the marking period of the written papers and the oral examination period in 2022 (see dates of the examination on page 5). Please note, if applicants take on more than one service agreement, they will be expected to fulfill the minimum marking load for the written paper AND their oral examination duties during the marking and examining period. Applicants who are appointed as an oral examiner will be invited to express an interest to serve as an SEN oral examiner in due course.

Paper 1 (Reading)

The marking of this paper will be divided into centralised and non-centralised. The first two days of the marking will be centralised. Thereafter, markers will be expected to continue marking on their own until the marking is completed. The deadline for the completion of marking is usually one week after the centralised session, but marking is usually completed earlier than this.

Paper 2 (Writing)

This paper will be divided into two rounds of marking. Markers are required to complete both rounds of marking.

In Round 1, markers will mark the compulsory question in Part A.

In Round 2, markers will be assigned to mark one elective question in Part B.

Therefore, markers will need to complete the standardisation for two separate tasks (Question 1 in Part A and one question in Part B). The second of these will take place around half way through the marking period. Markers are expected to mark around 400-500 scripts in total over the four-week marking period.

Paper 3 (Listening and Integrated Skills)

Markers will be assigned initially to one task, taking into consideration the overall needs and requirements of the marking of the paper as a whole. If the marking of one task finishes before the others, markers may be asked to mark a further task in the remaining part of the marking period.

Paper 4 (Speaking)

Applicants choose five examination centres in which they wish to examine ('1' indicating their first choice). Examiners will be chosen for a particular examination centre taking into consideration the overall needs and requirements of the administration of the paper as a whole.

Some examination centres are very popular and the applications for these centres exceed the number of positions available. However, there are other centres that are less popular and do not fill easily.

The chances of being offered a service agreement will be increased if markers apply for a less popular examination centre as one of their top five choices. The relative popularity of the centres has been estimated based on how close it is to an MTR station and on previous years' demand (see 'Popularity' in the table below).

Please note that examination centres may be subject to change. If appointed, you must be able to arrive at any centre you have applied for by 4:45pm latest, or 4:30pm for standby oral examiners.
